

Dear AGC Member,

Welcome to 2015 - a year that will be filled with new opportunities and continued growth for our association and our industry.

As you look to find new ways to save money and help your business become more efficient, I strongly encourage you to take a closer look and see how your business can benefit from our strategic partnerships. Indeed, AGC's Member Savings programs have evolved and grown over the past couple of years as we've consistently delivered quality solutions and services to our members with discounts and incentives. Our network now includes over 20 companies: www.agc.org/build.

Earlier this week we extended one of those partnerships with Computer Guidance Corporation (CGC - www.computerguidance.com) for another year. Through this partnership, Computer Guidance will continue providing members with the opportunity to leverage a complete construction business management software solution package to increase their operations performance. As an AGC member, you can purchase Computer Guidance's eCMS Construction ERP (Enterprise Resource Planning) solution at an exclusive AGC discount.

Thanks to ongoing innovation, technology providers such as Computer Guidance have revolutionized our construction industry with cloud-based, integrated financial and project management, mobile, document imaging, and business intelligence capabilities. Small and large construction companies alike have jumped onto the technology bandwagon.

Whether you're looking for a new software provider or a new fleet of vehicles, AGC of America's suite of Member Savings programs can help you be more successful in 2015.

Regards,

Stephen Sandherr
